Re: In the Matter of Petition of USTelecom for Forbearance Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I have Sonic gigafiber and I couldnt be more pleased. After years of being stuck between expensive cable with bad customer service and AT&T wired DSL service that was spotty and inconsistent I chose a competitive company because they were able to offer a better product, at a lower rate, that was more consistent and always fast with excellent customer service and technical support. If the FCC changes the way unbundled lines are leased or which companies have access to them it will increase my former competitive price and I will have to go back to an inferior product at a higher cost. Thats just plain dumb.

I work from home and it is crucial I have a solid internet connection. It took me 4 years of logging, contacting and demanding change from AT&T before I was able to get UVerse they already sold me, but was running on inferior IPDSLAM technology. Plus, I was at the end of an area where the wires terminated so my DSL bounced back all the time causing the whole building to go out. Even then, if several people were on the Internet the whole building could only pull 50 mbps from the street, so even though I was sold 45 mbps speed I was lucky to get close to that until Sonic came along.

Truth is, AT&T needs a swift kick

In the ass and to have some competition in the market. Dont stop companies like Sonic from having that opportunity!
